TEACHING

Colgate University

Awarded the Alumni Corporation Distinguished Teaching Award in 2017.

Developed and taught the following courses:

Unconscious Cognition: a 400-level seminar examining philosophical and empirical questions about unconscious mental activity. Spring 2020.

Self-Knowledge: a 400-level seminar examining the authority with which we can speak about our mental states. Spring 2010, Fall 2012.

Philosophy of Mind: a 300-level class examining historical and contemporary debates about the nature of mentality. Fall 2007, Fall 2008, Spring 2011, Fall 2013, Fall 2015, and Spring 2018.

Philosophy of Psychology: a 300-level class exploring the proper relationship between our everyday sense of ourselves (“folk-psychology”) and the questions asked, and answers offered, by the sciences of the mind and brain. Spring 2008 and Spring 2009.

Philosophy and Feminisms: Feminist Epistemology: a 300-level class examining whether and how considerations about gender could be relevant to different kinds of inquiry. Spring 2013, Fall 2016, and Fall 2018.

Introduction to Philosophical Problems: a 200-level class that cultivates students’ ability to analyze and produce philosophical arguments. We explore competing approaches to the nature of truth, the persistence of personal identity over time, free will, and skeptical questions about the justifiability of commonly held beliefs. Fall 2007 (two sections); Spring 2008; Spring 2009 (two sections); Spring 2010 (two sections); Spring 2011 (two sections); Spring 2012; Fall 2012 (two sections); Spring 2013; Spring 2016; Fall 2017 (two sections); and Spring 2019. As a First Year Seminar: Fall 2008 and Fall 2010. As a Summer Institute Course for the OUS program: 2014 and 2016.

Scottish Philosophy and the Fact-Value Distinction: a 300-level course exploring the fact/value distinction as it operates in the philosophy of David Hume, Adam Smith, and contemporary thinkers engaging with their work. Director's course for the 2014 and 2017 St Andrews Study Group.

Challenges of Modernity: a component of Colgate's Core Curriculum. My version of this course emphasizes the ways different texts from the modern period have posed, and tried to answer, the question of how we could justify our choices about how to live our lives. Fall 2010, Spring 2012, Fall 2013 (two sections), Fall 2015, Spring 2016, Fall 2016, Spring 2018 (two sections), and Fall 2019.

The Johns Hopkins University
